Annual Meeting of Stockholders-Reports of Officers-Election of Directors to Serve Buring the Year of 1876-7.

The Result of Operations for 1875-6 Ragarded as Satisfactory, but a Reduction in Expenses and Increase of Rates Noc-

Paying Investment, but an Elevator is Needed-A Clear and Forcible Statement, with Rea onable Recom: mendations.

The annual meeting of the Memphis and Cuerleston railroad company's stockholders was held at the Memphis club hall, in this city, yesterday. The meeting was called to order by R T. Wilson, president of the company, who nominated General Joseph Wheel-tary. Both of these gentlemen were selected, and General Wheeler, upon taking the chair, made a few remerks, in which he congratulated the directors igh to upon the success that had attended the company's operations during the past twelve months, it being the only out of eleven years past that had been without debt to the railroad.

On motion of General Rather, Dr. Heater and Mr. H. Caldwell we appointed judges of election, and Messrs. B s well Hines and Jerome Hill were made a committee on prexies. The committee on proxics reported that the amount of stock represented in person was 11 045 shares, and by proxy, 55,664 shares, making a total of 67,709.

PRESIDENT B. T. WILSON'S REPORT was read and ordered to be filed. The report is as follows, and speaks for itself: ANNUAL REPORT BY THE BOARD OF DI-RECTORS FOR THE FISCAL YEAR END-ING JUNE 30, 1876. The gross income has been as follows: rom freight. om express the net result of the year's business, considering the depressed condition of the commercial interests of the country, is right as satisfacory. The net income has been applied, so far as it has been required for that purpose, to the payment of interest on all classes of your funded debt except the consolidated or gold bonds, and on the income bonds; the holders of the coupons on these classes of indebtedness having kindly funded all of them, except $300 have been funded into the consolidated golds, and also all the income bonds, except $300 have been funded into the consolidated bonds. The Washington-street extension has cos. $13,633 63, which, although extended at some inconvenience, owing to the needy condition of the treasury, yet the benefit resulting faily justify the outlay; and these would be more apparent if we connected with an elevator at the river. The future of your company is still surrounded with more or less uncertainty, and especially as regards the value of its shares. With a return of prispirity in the

and especially as regards the value of its shares. With a return of prisp rity in the commercial interests of the country, and with a return to something like living rate for transportation among competing it ossof railways, and with good management in all the departments, the shares of the company would become valuable; but without such conditions, and with the very heavy debt; ow upon the company, the outlook, as already stated, is shrouded in uncertainty, and all that we shrouded in uncertainty, and all that we an hope to do with the present r tes for ransportation, and with the present limited clume of business, will be to preserve the roperry, and, if possible, prevent an increase a the debt of the company. While this may in the debt of the company. While this may be regarded as taking a very desponding view, yet it is not so intended, but, on the contrary, it is only meant to be a candid and trank statement of the situation as it now exist, which it is deemed proper to make, in order that you may be able to judge for your selves as to the value of your property. Your bord feels more or less encouraged with the results of the year's operations. The expenses under the immediate management of your able vice-president, Colonel C. M. M'Ghee, have been reduced out of all proportion to the decrease in the income, so that the net income, when supplemented by gains in the financial department, has been about sufficient to pay the accruing interest, or nearly so, and therefore the aggre-iterest, or nearly so, and therefore the aggregate indebtedness of the company has not been materially increased during the year. It s proper to add that we do not think he grea is proper to add that we do not think the great reduction in the expenses has been accomplished at the expense of the property, but mainly through that careful and watchful vigitance over every frem of outlay which business ability could apply, when impressed with the absolute necessity of such a course of administration, in order to preserve the life of the company. The greatest source of discouragement is to be found in the low rates received for trans-be found in the low rates received for transperiation, which it may not be easy to reme-ory. We think the present depression in the business of the country will pass away, and that the volume of business will most likely be sufficient to yield a satisfactory iccome, if only the rate for carrying can be rastored to anything like a living price. As to the prac-ticability, or probability, of obtaining remucability, or probability, of obtaining remu-erative rates, your board regrets that it cautot speak more hopefully. An increase in the rates for carrying fielght of a very mod-rate percentum would not be felt by the puberate percentum would not be felt by the puslic to any appreciable extent whatever, and yet it would rebuild a great and useful interest of the country, which would do as much toward restoring confidence and commercial prosperity as almost anything cire, and yet a result so desirable as this certainly would be seems to be wholly unattainable because of the naque limits to as this certainly would be seems to be wholly unattainable because of the undue limits to which the law of competition has been excended. How long this state of things may last no one can safely predect. It is certain however, that while it does last the great rail road interests, upon the prosperity of which so much of the welfare of the country depends, must remain in a very depressed condition, and with it the entire business interests of the country must suffer more or less, special attention is invited to the report of Colonel C.M. M'Ghee, vice president, and to the reports which accompany it for detailed he reports which accompany it for detailed statements of the year's operations; and, also, to the general balance sheet of the secretary and treasurer, which exhibits the financial dition of the company. Respectfully subject, R. T. WILSON, President. THE GENERAL MANAGER'S REPORT was next read and ordered to be filed. It is as To the President and Directors of the Mem-phis and Charleston Railroad Company: I was called to the position of general manager of your road in January, 1875. I at once entered upon a careful examination of the property, organization and management. It did not require a very thorough investigation to satisfy me that the management was still extravagant, notwithstanding the large reduction in expenses which had been made by nction in expenses which had been made by the general manager who preceded me. But is it is much easier to detect disease than to emedy, time was required to determine the set mode of reducing expenses, and it was nits a while before the changes effected bant to show in expenses. You are referred to the reports of Captain W. J. Ross, superingendent of transportation, and James R.

ger departments, for the results of the year which ended on the thirtieth of June, and comparison of the business of that year with comparison of the business of that year with the year which preceded it. The road has been of erated with reasonable economy, and compares well with the extravagance of the pat, out is yet not so economically administered as Itshould be, or as some other roads no better located or situated are. When I took charge of your road, I had not calculated upon taking charge of details, but have found it necessary, in view of the habits of extravagance which I found pervading every department, to give personal attention to every degame which I found pervading every depart-ment, to give personal attention to every de-tail of the road. This has entailed upon me an amount of labor and a moyance for which I was upprepared, that which has not ac-corded with means and habits, but from which I have not turned aside. The operation of the past year as shown can be relied upon as a fair and impartial statement. No ex-penses property pertaining to the year have penses properly pertsining to the year have been omitted, and none of any amount pertaining to past years have been carried in it. The year's operations stand alone, and may be accepted as a criterion of what may be expected from an ordinarily economical management. The roadway has been improved; motive power is more effective than a year ago, as well rs the freight equipment. The conclusion that I have a rived at as to the future of the property is, that we must reduce expenses, increase business, get better raises for the work we do, reduce our interest account, make some progress in all, or ultima e insolvency must result. I am satisfied that additional reductions may be made in operating the road, but this will be offset by a more rapid renewal of the deterioration of past years. It is proposed to put two thousand five enumered tons new rails in the track for the ensuing year, which will improve its condition, and to make such repairs on motive power and car equipments as to preserve their efficiency. From present appearances the re-efficiency. From present appearances the re-copts of the road have reached a minimum, and an improvement may be expected.
